Biographies of new directors

Liz Cole

Liz Cole designed workplace health and wellness programs for companies throughout Ontario for 17 years before joining Willow Breast Cancer Support Canada as Director of Operations and finally coordinating a national web-based injury prevention tool kit on concussion in team sports. She is also the author of Perfect Prey, a true story about overcoming romantic fraud including the production of an episode for W5 on CTV. Since 2013, Liz and her husband David have called Collingwood home and enjoy sharing their lives with family, friends, and community.

Bridget Schmidt

Bridget grew up in England and moved to Canada after marrying a Canadian. She has two children, two stepsons and six grandchildren. Bridget spent her career as an elementary school teacher in Waterloo region before retiring and moving to Collingwood twelve years ago. She has attended and enjoyed GTLLI lectures for several years and, as being a secretary to various organizations seems to have become a bit of a retirement project, is happy to help GTLLI out in this way.

Larry Hogarth

After graduating from Ryerson in 1968, Larry moved to Collingwood and started a 46 year career as a Civil Technologist in consulting engineering with Ainley & Associates and Tatham Engineering. A two year sabbatical, working for the Department of Water Affairs in Botswana as a CUSO volunteer provided a different perspective on engineering design, construction and project management. Larry has volunteered with several local boards/organizations, including the Remedial Action Plan for the Collingwood Harbour, Waste Management Plan Committee, E3 Community Services and Collingwood Optimist Club (charter member). He is currently the chair of the Trinity United Church Cemetery Board and treasurer for the Institute of Southern Georgian Bay.
